 - The CVI is issued for an animal if the inspection is done on the farm where the animal originated. A CVI is only valid for a maximum of 30 days. Any animal housed outside of New Jersey must use a CVI form to compete in the shows.
 - An AHC may be issued by an accredited veterinarian but does not need to be issued at the site where the animal is housed. The veterinarian can issue an AHC valid for a 30, 60, or 90 day period based on the veterinarian's knowledge of the herd.
